Abstract

In order to establish international reference laboratory for animal diseases, a visit to Nancy Laboratory for Rabies and Wildlife (the reference laboratory of the European Union, the World Organisation for Animal Health, and the World Health Organization) in France was conducted from 13-22 January this year (2024). During the visit, new knowledge and experiences about the techniques and quality management system for rabies diagnosis (including the direct fluorescent antibody test (DFA) and molecular diagnostic techniques, etc.) were learnt. We also discussed with experts of Nancy Laboratory about how to operate a WOAHP reference laboratory and to organize proficiency testing. Information about how to enhance rabies control was also exchanged during the visit.
